The picnic and ball at Indianola was fairly well represented by Cocoa, though many more would have gone over after dinner had there been a way of going.

Mrs. R. W. Goode and daughter, Miss Jessie, two charming ladies of Melbourne, were in town for awhile last Friday before going on to Indianola to attend the picnic and ball.

The flowers in Mrs. J. M. Sanders' yard are particularly attractive right now. She has a number of white geraniums in bloom and an exquisite calla lily. Roses also adorn the yard.

Their friends were glad to see Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Wood, Monday. They have been spending some time at their pineapple plantation on the St. Lucie river, and have come up to spend awhile in Cocoa.

About 10 o'clock Monday night Mr. S. S. Jones started across the river to Merritt, where he goes with Mr. Charlie Cleveland on a cow hunt. A large lighter was brought over and "Tony," Mr. Jones' little gray pony, also made the trip over and will assist the gentlemen with the cows.

While on her return from dinner to school Monday little Nellie Stiling came very near stepping on a large rattlesnake near the fish express house. Her cries brought Peter Wright, an old negro man, who was fortunately at hand. Peter, having nothing else at hand, commenced throwing pieces of brick at the snake. At one blow off came a big bundle of rattles and the snake escaped in the scrub near at hand. There were seven rattles and a button.

Last Saturday afternoon an accident occurred that came near proving serious to little Schelley Jones. Mr. S. S. Jones and Mr. J. F. Wooten drove down to Rockledge with the latter's horse and buggy, taking little S. S., Jr., with them. On their way back they undertook to pass a buggy about in front of the old Wilkinson place, as they were going at a good rate, the horse in some manner got too near a palmetto tree, throwing the buggy with furious force against it, which caused the three occupants to be thrown out and the horse to be torn from the shafts. Just an instant before the crash came Mr. Wooten, seeing that a collision was inevitable, threw his arm around Schelley, who was sitting in his father's lap, and jumped with him. This, in all probability, saved the child's life. Mr. Jones was driving. During the confusion that ensued Schelley became tangled in the lines and was dragged several feet before either of the gentlemen could get up and get to him. The buggy in front was stopped and the occupants were found to be Mrs. S. S. Jones, Mrs. R. F. Jones and Miss Fanny Andrews. It took some time to extricate S. S., Jr., from the lines. He seemed to be very badly hurt at first, but after getting some of the dust and blood from his face he was found to be only bruised and scratched up, having quite an ugly cut on the right side of his forehead, another on the right cheek, and his lip cut on the inside. Upon his arrival home he was found to be considerably bruised, though. Both Mr. Jones and Mr. Wooten were pretty well shaken up. Altogether, it was, for a time, quite a serious looking affair.

The snake struck at him as he passed and fastened its fangs in his trousers, but luckily did not go through. George went several yards before he could stop his bicycle, but went back and killed the snake, which measured five feet.

In your paper of the 16th inst., you have an article which pleased me greatly. It is in regard to keeping orange trees in bounds; not letting them grow so high. To be sure they look very pretty when high and covered with golden fruit to the very top. For all that I shall trim my sweet seedlings down at the proper season. When they branch out sideways they have as many oranges and shade the ground at the same time. I have been of that opinion for some time, but on asking men experienced in orange culture have been laughed at. They said you can always get long enough poles to make ladders out of. For my part I don't want to climb so high as I came near having a serious accident, and was only saved by falling into the center of a sweet seedling, and was pricked severely in consequence.
